NoHo Hospitality Group Opens The Astor at The Public

The Library was one of those little NoHo secrets of sorts. Not that The Public or NoHo Hospitality Group flies under the radar exactly, but it's one of those neighborhood local spots that was very much for those in the know. Now, this storied spot has transformed into a new life as The Astor. Read more about it here.

Semm Debuts at The Sylvia Wald and Po Kim Gallery

On Lafayette, there's a new destination for coffee and tea - welcome to NoHo, Semm! Drawing inspiration from Korean teahouse culture, this arts-filled space is a cafe by day, listening bar by night, and offers a unique set menu you won't find anywhere else. Learn more here.

Tomorrow, Thursday, September 17th, from 6:00 - 8:00 PM, Bill Miller's second solo show at NoHo's dieFirma gallery will host an opening reception to celebrate the launch of this new exhibition. More details here.

Remembering the Grand Central Hotel, 53 Years Later

In 1973, the storied Grand Central Hotel, once the most luxurious in America, had turned into a place of squalor, and collapsed right on to Broadway just as the neighborhood was transforming into a hub for artists. Read more about the rise, and incredible fall, here.

Shop Walmart's NYC Fashion Pop-Up This Week Only

Through Sunday, September 20th, Walmart Fashion has transformed 1 Bond Street into a destination for fashion. Shop some of their house brands like Free Assembly, and celebrate the launch of their new collection for women, Scenario. Get more details about the pop-up here.

NoHo BID Takes Toronto for the International Downtown Association Conference

Earlier this month, the NoHo BID's staff headed out to Toronto to attend the International Downtown Association's Annual Conference and Marketplace. At this conference, we learn ways to better serve the neighborhood, implement strategies and best practices, and meet with other similar organizations from around the world.

Did you know Toronto is the urban raccoon capital of the world? We celebrated with this silly photo that wouldn't be possible without a NoHo business. IKE is a sponsor of this conference, they create interactive kiosks for public space that we were testing out, and they have an office right in our neighborhood!
