

Neighborhood Spotlight: What Our Executive Director Loves About NoHo

It's Valentine's Day, and we're really feeling all the NoHo love. In the spirit of the holiday, we asked Cordelia Persen, our Executive Director, to share a little on what she loves about NoHo. It's basically a love letter to the neighborhood filled with insight on what makes NoHo tick. Read the Spotlight here.

Making Last Minute Valentine's Day Plans? Make Them for NoHo

Did the holiday sneak up on you? It's okay, your special somebody doesn't have to know! We've rounded up a few last minute options in the neighborhood that still have availability to make Valentine's Day special. Read the guide here, and act fast before there's no options left.

NoHo is New York's Most Romantic Neighborhood

Thrillist's guide to the most romantic restaurants in NYC includes four great NoHo spots, but the romance doesn't end there. We've rounded up some of the best ways to spend a memorable evening together any time of year - whether it's Valentine's Day, date night, or whatever else you're celebrating! NoHo Business Corner: KYU

Did you know that this eatery is keeping things hot? No, we're not talking about the incredible wood-fire oven they use for their Asian fusion food. We're talking about their new Spicy Chicken Sandwich, only available at their NYC location. It's an if you know you know special, and trust us, you want to know. It's not just any sandwich, this is a Korean fried chicken patty, chili butter, a lime aioli slaw, and pickles. Book a table here to try.

Love a NoHo Business? Tell Us Why!

Love is in the air, and Valentine's Day is almost here. We love all of the unique businesses in NoHo, and know our community does too. We're collecting love letters to NoHo stores, and want your help! If you love a NoHo business, tell us why.

We'll pass along the message to the store, and our favorite one will get a special shoutout in our next newsletter! It can be as short or long as you'd like. Click here to send us one.
